100 BBL. OF OIL ORDERED FOR C'PORT

Main and High Streets to Be Oiled and Possibly Other Streets.

One hundred barrels of oil have been ordered to oil those streets in Cloverport, where the business men and private resident owners have subscribed enough money to pay for the oil.

Mr. O. T. Odewalt, who started the movement, has collected sufficient funds to oil Main street from Nolte's corner to the corner of the Golden Rule store, and up Elm street in front of The Breckinridge News office. He has also received subscriptions from the residents on High street in the East End, including all of those from Payne's corner to the Presbyterian church.

It is very likely that the residents from Mr. John A. Ross' corner to J. C. Nolte's home will take up the movement and oil that street, and those living on River street contemplate doing likewise. Should River street be oiled, the city's main thoroughfare will be practically free of dust this summer.

The business men contributed 15c per lineal foot to oil Main and Elm streets, while the residence sections will be oiled at 8c per lineal foot as only the center of the streets are to be oiled.

The oil is being furnished from Powers' well in Hawesville and shipped here by the Cloverport Ferry Co. The city bears the expense of having the oil put on the streets.

TO CUT WAGES OF 1,000,000 UNSKILLED R. R. MEN

U. S. Railroad Labor Board Announces Its Intentions.

Chicago, May 17.—The United States Railroad Labor Board late today announced its intention of revising downward the wages of more than 1,000,000 unskilled rail workers, effective July 1. The amount of the decrease will be made public on June 1.

At the same time the board announced that it would hold hearings on June 3, regarding proposals by the roads to decrease the wages of other classes of employees, and would also make its decision in these cases effective on the same date.

A similar decision in the case of skilled workers would mean a cut in the pay of practically every railway worker in the country on July 1, and would affect approximately 2,000,000 men, it was pointed out.

The announcement today, which said that "prevailing conditions justify to some extent, yet to be determined, a readjustment downward of wages," was entirely unexpected and came only a few hours after the close of the hearings which have been in progress since early in April. Neither the roads nor the representatives of the unions had expected any announcement for several weeks.

FRUIT SHORTAGE IS PREDICTED

Reports Refer Particularly to Stone Fruits. Apples May Be Short Too.

The State agents of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, report that there will be a short fruit crop this year. The shortage will be fairly general east of the Rocky Mountains, except in portions of Michigan, New York and New England. The reports particularly to stone fruits, such as cherries, plums and peaches, but also indicate that there will be a material shortage of apples and grapes, though not as extensive as the shortage of stone fruits. It is too early, the statisticians say to make an estimate of the probable yield of blackberries and raspberries. With the shortage of stone fruits it is expected that the fruit supply for domestic canning purposes will be limited in many sections. While considerable frost damage has occurred in some parts of California, the general outlook for deciduous fruits on the Pacific slope is still regarded as good.

Ford Producing 4,000 Cars Per Day

Present Production Greater Than for Same Period Last Year

Ford is building cars at full speed. And, according to an official statement from the factory at Detroit, the demand for Ford cars and trucks still exceed the output, despite the fact that a new high level of production has been reached.

By the first of May the figures representing daily production were in the neighborhood of 4,000 a day, so the May schedule was set at 101,125 cars and trucks, not including the output of the Ford Canadian plant or any of the foreign assembly plants. The output mounted daily; May 12th brought forth 4,092 cars, the greatest number that have been produced this year in one day. Since the month has 25 working days, present indications point to a new high record.

A comparison of Ford production figures for 1920 and 1921 discloses the fact that for April, 1921 the output was greater by 34,514 cars than for the corresponding month a year ago. The output for May, 1921 will probably overshadow May, 1920 by between 15,000 and 20,000 cars and trucks.

Approximately 43,000 men are at work in the Detroit plant of the Ford Motor Company. The factory is operating on full time, six days a week and three shifts a day.

"We were never in better condition than we are right now" said Henry Ford recently.

Do not delay, buy your Ford car now.

WHAT IS WILL POWER?

One kind of will power is the power which directs the handling of your estate after death. But without a will, this power is taken entirely out of your hands.

Another kind of will power stops putting off so important a matter, sends you to an attorney to have your will made and protects the interests of yourself and family by appointing the Trust Department of The Bank of Hardinsburg and Trust Company as your executor.

HARDIN'S SCHOOL

The beautiful weather hath filled the farmers with a vim, so that they are losing no time from their farm work. Everyone has quit fishing and gone to planting corn and making tobacco hills.

Nearly everyone in this part of the country has sold their 1930 crop of tobacco to the local buyers realizing a very low price. However they are all planning to put out another crop of the weed regardless of low prices, worms and diseases.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely with a goodly number of scholars and always several visitors. Among the visitors from a distance last Sunday were Miss Annie Murl DeHaven, Miss Evelyn Miller Hook, of Hardinsburg, Mr. Floyd Meador and James Buckby of Cloverport.

SUGAR MANUFACTURED FROM CORN

By S. R. Winters, in the June Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The commercial production of a sugar possessing the approximate sweetness of cane sugar, obtainable from a source of low-priced raw material, with the finished product resolving itself into a crystallized form, has been the objective toward which chemists have struggled unceasingly for decades. Now, thanks to the unremitting research of an eastern chemist, sugar is being made commercially from corn. A Baltimore manufacturing establishment, working two shifts of 12 hours each, is producing approximately 70,000 pounds of corn sugar daily, chemically known as "invertose."

The new process involves the production of sugar of a group technically known as ketohexoses, or fruit sugars. The fruit sugars are sweet, the sugar obtained by this process being 80 per cent as sweet as cane sugar, and possessing other favorable qualities. Corn, containing from 65 to 70 per cent of starch, was selected for its starch-yielding capacity, and by reason of its well-nigh inexhaustible supply and availability. One bushel of corn will yield 46 pounds of invertose.

The method is first to produce an intermediate compound from starch in the material used and then convert this intermediate into fruit sugar by well-known means. The second reaction is effected by any of the well-known methods of reduction, such as hydrogenation, or treating with hydrogen gas, whereupon is formed the fruit sugar, or invertose.

Only six hours elapse from the time the ground corn—either corn meal or flour—is placed in the machine for the formation of the starch until the finished product comes from the evaporators in the form of a sirup to be barreled for shipment. Invertose is not a by-product, but is made directly from whole corn, with no waste, as about 16 pounds of wet mash to every bushel is recovered as cattle food. If sold in crystallized form, two days are required in which to crystallize the product. It is readily marketable to confectioners, preserve and fruit packers, ice-cream manufacturers, soft drink bottlers, and for use by the restaurant trade.

MONUMENTAL ACHIEVEMENT OF EX-PRESIDENT WILSON

The following "boiler-plate" editorial, necessarily of a spineless nature, is being printed in a number of Kentucky papers:

For many months not the country has been suffering from a depression in business that at any other time would have resulted in disastrous panic.

Does that indicate that the American people have reached a degree of enlightenment that renders them immune to financial panics?

Have they reached the point where they collectively recognize the wisdom of calmness and restraint in the hour of adversity?

Has our civilization reached the stage where the practical element predominates?

Or is it simply a growing and abiding faith in the stability of our country and its form of government?

What is your answer to the query? The answer to the query is easy. It is not found in any new psychological condition of the American people, but in the simple fact of the Federal Reserve Act.

That act enabled the American people to withstand alike the shocks of a world war and of the reconstruction period without a panic. But for its existence, our whole financial and economic structure would have toppled, and even if a victory at arms would have been saved from the wreckage, our plight today would be pitiful.

The Federal Reserve act will stand for generations as the monumental achievement of the Wilson Administration.—Elizabethtown News.

CHARITY PATIENT GONE WITH $3,500 IN RADIUM.

The patient disappeared with the radium on May 8, and police investigation has failed to reveal any trace of him.

The radium, in two needles, had been placed in a cancerous growth and the patient had been instructed to return to have it removed.

WOOL GROWERS GET REFUND FROM EXCESS PROFITS

Checks Amounting to $185,463.66 Distributed to Growers Over Country.

A new record of distributing refunded excess profits on the 1918 wool clip was made by the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, during the week ending April 16, when 11,645 checks, representing $53,188.06, were mailed out to growers. The total number of refund checks which were mailed out to that date was 54,492, distributing excess profits amounting to $185,463.66.

The distribution of refunds was begun last October. Distribution for the week ending April 16 covered one-fifth of the total number of checks and one-fourth of the total amount of money returned to growers that far. The record made during that week, however, was due to an accumulation of checks received from the disbursing office and the special effort made to bring the work up to date.

Up to this time $568,116.54 has been received from wool dealers as excess profits to be distributed to the growers. The pending excess-profits cases involve an additional minimum amount of $581,600.27, which will make the total refund from wool dealer $1,149,716.81. This represents the excess profits thus far ascertained and demanded from 68 central dealers and 953 country dealers. Reports submitted by wool dealers indicate that only 38 per cent of the central dealers and 20 per cent of the country dealers made excess profits on their 1918 transactions.

KENTUCKY WOMEN MUST PAY POLL TAX.

Frankfort, Ky., May 14.—Along with the privileges of full citizenship, the woman of rural Kentucky will assume the obligation of paying a poll tax. This tax is for the benefit of the county common schools.

Atty. Gen. Charles I. Dawson, in response to an inquiry from Bernard Stone, chairman of the Nelson County Board of Education, said there is no doubt in his mind that the county school poll tax applies to women as well as men.

Heretofore the poll tax has referred specifically to "males" 21 years or older, but the new county school law provides that the Fiscal Court "shall impose upon all legal voters, residing in the territory affected by the ad valorem tax, a capitation tax of not more than $1 each."

As women are legal voters, the Attorney General said, he cannot see how they may escape the tax.—Courier-Journal.

PLAN FOR COOPERATIVE MARKETING ORGANIZATION

Tobacco Growers of This Territory Met in Owensboro, Wednesday; Fifty Delegates Present.

About fifty delegates attended the meeting of tobacco growers from the Green River, one sucker and stemming tobacco growing sections, which was held in Owensboro, last Wednesday. The purpose of the meeting was to form a cooperative tobacco marketing organization throughout the Green River one sucker and stemming districts for the counties in that territory. Counties represented were Daviess, McLean, Hancock, Breckinridge and Webster.

Henry S. Berry, of Daviess county, who presided as chairman of the meeting, was directed to choose a committee composed of three members, one from each of the three districts, which will meet in Owensboro at the earliest possible date to confer with Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, and Prof. O. B. Jessness, of Lexington, and to draw up the constitution and by-laws for the proposed organization. The plans will then be submitted to a delegate meeting to be attended by at least one delegate from each county in the territory, which will be held in Owensboro shortly afterward, probably early in June.

Resolutions Adopted.

A committee to draw up resolutions was named and composed of: Daviess county, F. K. Moseley, Henry Berry; Webster county, Louis Hancock; Hancock county, F. M. Humphrey and John G. Kelly; McLean county, L. W. Johnson and W. E. Bibb; Breckinridge county, E. Moorman and G. T. Squires.

The committee later presented the following resolution which was adopted:

"Your committee on resolutions recommends as follows: That you elect a committee of one from each district in the proposed territory of the organization to meet at the earliest possible date in joint session with Judge R. W. Bingham, of Louisville, and Prof. Jessness, of Lexington, to draw up the constitution and by-laws of the proposed association of the selling agency. When this work has been completed this committee shall call a meeting at Owensboro at which meeting every county in the three districts shall be urged to send a delegate to represent each county in the adoption or rejection of the proposed plan."

The resolution was later amended so as to give Mr. Berry, the chairman, the power of naming the members of the committee.

Delegates Present

The delegates present at the meeting Wednesday were as follows: Daviess county—W. M. Wimsatt, J. M. Vowells, James Payne, F. X. Schadler, F. K. Moseley and Henry Berry; McLean county—F. G. Smith, G. B. McMananama, L. W. Johnson, Walter Scott, Henry Van Cleve, E.

A HERO AMONG THE "BIG BROTHERS" OF KY.

Story of Homeless Orphan, Who Gave His Life in World War.

The zero hour, that morning at Chateau Thierry marked the first check to the German hordes sweeping on toward Paris. The First American Army stood like a wall of rock, but as the smoke of battle cleared among the dead and dying was Guy Everett Warren.

To Uncle Sam, he meant but another son who had sacrificed his life for his country that Democracy and Civilization should not be destroyed. But back in Kentucky was a mother.

She did not know her son had died the death of a hero; she did not even know he had gone to war; she knew only that she had had a son twenty-two years before and the burden had been too great. A "Big Brother," The Kentucky Children's Home Society in Louisville, had carried on where she had failed and the "Big Brother" knew Guy had gone to war and when the first reports of the dead came in, a gold star replaced the blue in the Service Flag of the Kentucky Children's Home Society.

In those early days of American's part in the World War, news spread slowly and not for several months did it become known that Guy Everett Warren of Hardin County had taken out $10,000 insurance payable to his estate.

During this time the Government was trying to find his relatives and then it was revealed to the Federal investigators that all records concerning Guy Everett Warren were in the archives of the Kentucky Children's Home Society. These were resorted to and through them the name of the mother who had since remarried, was learned.

Guy Everett Warren was committed to the Home Society by the County Judge of Hardin County in 1903, a waif, homeless and alone, his mother being unable to care for him. There he was trained into useful manhood and left the home to enter a farmer's home as a son. When the war broke out, Guy was among the first to answer the colors.

Guy is one of 5,000 boys and girls taken in by the "Big Brother" to the homeless children of Kentucky and now these little ones are to move into the country. The cottage plan village at Lyndon to which they will go October 15th will cost $300,000 when completed. It is situated in a 90 acre tract where George L. Sehon, Superintendent of the society believes they will be greatly improved in health by the out door life and freedom from the city's soot laden atmosphere.

From Breckinridge county 18 children have committed since the Home Society was founded twenty-five years ago. Breckinridge county, so far has contributed $1,702.42 to the fund for the home but $297.58 is needed from this county where the quota has been fixed at $2,000.

"300 PUREBRED BULLS FOR KENTUCKY FARMERS."

To still further improve the quality of livestock in Kentucky the Louisville Livestock Exchange and the Kentucky Purebred Livestock Association are actively supporting a "Better Sires" campaign in that State. Besides distributing educational material pointing out the value of good pure bred sires in all classes of livestock, arrangements have been made to hold a farmer's bull sale on June 2nd. In a letter to the U. S. Department of Agriculture the president (W. S. Bell) of the Louisville Live Stock Exchange states, referring to the sale: "We expect to place 300 purebred bulls with the farmers of the State of Kentucky. There is no mercenary motive behind it. The Louisville Livestock Exchange is giving publicity free of charge and the breeders are entering their stock for this sale without reservation. No individual breed or breeder will be advertised."

LOCAL ADVERTISING PAYS AND PAYS BIG TOO

Dear Brother Publisher:

Show this chart to your local skeptics as a proof that local advertising pays—and pays big!

This graphic picture of what Avery dealers did is based on actual results reported to Avery by country dealers who sell their implements and machines. Most of the advertising done by these local dealers was in their local papers—and the advertising dealers averaged 13 times as much in sales as the non-advertising dealers.

Every last one of your local merchants ought to be a constant and consistent user of space in your paper. Maybe this chart will help you convince some of the unconvinced. We hope so.

It is true that the real velvet in a merchant's profit lies in his stock turn-over and it does then the only in selling is to advertise locally. You way he can approach 100% efficiency can show him that you can help stimulate his stock turn-over.

You can give your merchants the local contract they can get in no other way.

Go get 'em! We're for you!

Yours very truly,
SOUTHERN AGRICULTURIST

WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1921

The next step for Breckinridge county is to have women jurors. Ladies, be ready for the summons!

For the next three months, parents can realize again what the school teacher goes through with nine months out of the year.

It looks like there should be a special city measure passed making it a misdemeanor to throw papers or refuse on the public highways and sidewalks when citizens haven't enough civic pride to try and keep their city clean.

With the streets oiled, Cloverporters expect to enjoy a pleasant summer right here at home where we have all the attractions of a summer resort including, beautiful scenery, swimming, tennis, fishing and all the fresh vegetables from your own garden. Do you ever stop and think about what a good town you are living in?

Thomas A. Edison declares that his experience with his employees has shown him that men who have gone through college are amazingly ignorant. Perhaps it isn't the educational system of America that's all wrong so much as it is the men whom Mr. Edison employed. It takes a lot of good common sense to make use of an education after one acquires it.

Tobacco growers from the Green River, One Sucker and Stemming Districts met in Owensboro, last week and decided to form a cooperative marketing organization. If you have been reading the tobacco articles published in The Breckinridge News the last two issues and in this number, on the Sapiro plan for marketing tobacco, it gives you an idea of what the tobacco growers in this territory are contemplating. The Sapiro plan made California renowned for its raisins, lemons, etc., why shouldn't it help our farmers in marketing their tobacco?

Read Mr. Sapiro's plan. It's interesting whether you raise tobacco or not and see what one man did for the farmers in the West.

FARMER'S BETTER SIRE SALE

The urgent need for farmers to awaken to their opportunities and grow better grade cattle is emphasized by Morgan O. Hughes, known throughout the state as the "Farmer's Friend." Mr. Hughes who is associated with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture in a statement declares that the campaign by the Louisville Live Stock Exchange to improve the breeding of meat animals is one of the most important ever conducted in the interest of the farmer.

Particular importance is attached by Mr. Hughes to the Farmer's Better Sire Sale to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards, June 2nd, when 300 purebred registered bulls are to be auctioned to the farmers of the State at prices they themselves will make.

"It is ideal," says Mr. Hughes, "that every farmer should be growing a few good calves and of course we all realize that a good grade will be much more profitable than a scrub and if we could eradicate the scrub sires in the state and put in a good useful, well bred beef types it would add a good deal to the income of each farmer."

"It is particularly fitting at this time, as good useful sires of all the beef breeds can be bought at such reasonable prices, in some cases no much more than beef prices and my help can be counted on to assist in this campaign."

CANDIDATES.

Always in county campaigns there is more or less said about this candidate and that candidate. The truth of it is that the county has plenty of good men in it and men who can fill any office in the county with credit to the people as well as to the office holder.

Paul Basham, the Republican candidate for County Judge is a young man of unquestionable reputation. He comes from one of the best families in this county or any other county. He was brought up on a farm—his parents on both sides of the house have followed farming all their lives and are still in that occupation. Young Basham is well educated—has had a practical legal training and has demonstrated that he is a man who attends to business. Every one knows who has been in the court room that he is a very efficient officer and knows how to run a court and has always been courteous with the public. He comes from courteous people and the public knows that Paul's office has been well run with Paul there himself to greet the people who happen to have business in his office or call around for a little chat. Yes, he is a Republican. That is his privilege. The Republican party seems to have confidence in him. They are going to nominate him as their candidate for County Judge. They believe in him and no one in the party seems to take it upon themselves to try to defeat him for the nomination.

Jesse M. Howard, the Democratic candidate for County Judge hails from the South side of the County and is a man in whom the public has confidence. He was born and reared on one side of the county and his opponent on the other side. So, they have the middle to play against. Mr. Howard is a good farmer and attends to his business. He has been a member of the Fiscal Court for the past four years and has tried to do what he could for his fellow man. He delights in raising fine stock to sell to his neighbors who call for such. He is a Democrat, and that is his privilege. His party has picked him to represent them. The same is true of him that is true of his opponent no one seems to want to take the nomination from him.

So, it appears that both parties are going to nominate good men and that is what the county wants. There is one thing that this county does not want, and that is it doesn't want a bitter, personal campaign between these two gentlemen, and there will not be a bitter campaign between them if the backers of each will just stay out of it and let them run on their merit. Bitter campaigns hurt the interests of the county. The winner always feels like he wants to get back at some body and the result of it is the county suffers. We don't want that. The Breckinridge News feels like that either one of the men will make a good county judge and will do all for the county that is possible. It certainly should be remembered that there are some things he can't do. Promises won't work man has to do what he can. The Breckinridge News has gone thru many campaigns. It has seen hot campaigns and has always taken particular notice that personal insults resulted in a backward step.

Hence let us make this an ideal campaign. One that will be a credit to the candidates and pleasing to the voters. We will all feel better after it is over.

FARM AND STOCK

John Alexander, of Hardinsburg, was 77 years old last Sunday. He is looking younger and better than he has for years. There was no celebration of the event. Said his wife did end up the dinner with old fashioned egg custard, like his mother used to make. Mrs. Alexander is just one year older than her husband.

Millard Brown, of Mystic, has been over at Hardinsburg for the past week. Dr. Kincheloe operated on him for piles and hemorrhoids. He is getting along nicely and expects to be at home this week.

J. A. Waggoner, of Hardinsburg Route 2, sold Rev. H. S. English, 4 Poland China gilts, 10 months old average 75 pounds. These pigs sold for $15 a piece and cheap at that.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Keys, of West Point, were guests of Mr. and Mrs.

Grayson Payne at their birthday dinner, last Sunday.

Mr. Sam Dix representing the Stephensport Mill & Elevator Co., went to Brandenburg, Monday, to make his regular trip down the river.

Ruseau Bruner, of Frymire, went to Louisville, Monday.

Noley Ashley had his fine saddle horse badly cut on a barbed wire fence last week.

Cal Stillwell says he has a good crop of apples and peaches on his farm near Addison. G. P. Maysey also has a good crop. Mr. Maysey grows the best Wine Sap apples in the country. He trims and sprays all of his trees.

Our old friend G. P. Cunningham was over at Hardinsburg, last Saturday the first time we have met him for more than a year. Says he has been staying at home working and taking care of himself. He looks fine.

Miss Emma Lou Moorman, of Glen Dean, came up last Saturday to visit her niece, Mrs. G. V. Dowell. Miss Emma says she has over 100 frying chickens nearly ready for the market.

The Highway men are pushing their work on both ends of the line and in the middle. The bridge across Sinking Creek to be put up near Ginger Bandy's has arrived at Irvington.

Investigations are being conducted by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for the purpose of finding some practical remedy which will prevent and control "Black Head" the most serious disease of turkeys. This trouble which has proved to be the greatest obstacle to the turkey-raising industry in the State is caused by an organism which affects the intestines and liver.

One hundred Kentucky farmers are keeping cost production records on tobacco and more than 25 are keeping similar records on all farm operations in cooperation with the College of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, according to Prof. W. D. Nicholls, head of the Farm Economics Department. Those keeping tobacco records are equally divided between the Burley and dark tobacco growing areas. The records will be used in determining the cost of raising various farm crops.

MEMORIAL

In loving remembrance of our beloved daughter, Gracie Mitchell, who died Feb. 10, 1919.

Two years have passed away, Two years since that fatal day, When one loved and dearly missed Lay cold in death before our eyes.

We miss her coming footsteps, We miss her everywhere; Home is not what it used to be, Since our dear Gracie is not here.

Short was her life, great was her pain Great was our loss, greater her gain; Our friendship and love She needeth no more.

We've pressed on her forehead The last kiss of love For an angel has welcomed Dear Gracie above.

The lovely flower so young and fair Called hence to earthly doom, Just come to show how sweet flowers In paradise would bloom.

How we miss you dear Gracie None but our dearest Lord in Heaven knows But one sweet hope and consolation Is that your dear soul has sweet repose.

Sad and lonesome is her mother, Mrs. J. R. Mitchell, Mooleyville, Ky.

MORE COURAGE AND LESS CONVERSATION

We are bountifully supplied with power and resources. What we need is action, more action, and still more action. There is only one thing in the world that I am afraid of," says Samuel M. Vaulain. "I am afraid of the establishment of the debating society as a business institution. Too much advising results in finding the various ways in which a thing cannot be done."

If endless talking pro and con resulted only in the loss of time, it would be bad enough, but when in addition it paralyzes our springs of action and leaves us sitting helpless and done, it is high time to cut the conversation.

What trouble we have is temporary and results largely from a state of mind. "We have," says the current issue of "The Annalist," "all the power and resources we need."

"Notwithstanding that the United States has only 6 per cent of the population of the world and only 7 per cent of the land, bank deposits and resources in this country exceed the combined bank deposits and resources of the whole world. We have one-third of all the gold coin and bullion in the world, which constitutes the basis for our credit structure.

"In addition, we produce 24 per cent of the world's wheat, 60 per cent of its cotton, 75 per cent of its corn, 27 per cent of its cattle, 25 per cent of all its dairy products, 40 per cent of all its iron and steel, 20 per cent of its gold, 40 per cent of its silver, 32 per cent of its coal, 60 per cent of its copper, 66 per cent of its oil, 85 per cent of its automobiles.

"In brief, we contribute one-quarter of the world's agricultural products, one third of its manufactured goods, and more than one-third of its mineral products. And from a debtor nation owing other countries $5,000,000,000 prior to the World War we are today the second greatest creditor nation on earth, with foreign people owing us in excess of $12,000,000,000,000.

"All that is necessary for us to capitalize our vast possibilities is the vision to see our opportunities and the will to accomplish the tasks that confront us. There is ample need and ample reason for sane optimism."

And the chief task which confronts us today is to gather enough momentum to keep the machine rolling. The machine is there, sound mechanically and well supplied with fuel—but most of us are sitting on the back seat—talking, and wondering when the darn thing is going to start.

Some man or some event may start the engine at any moment—it might have been an election or an inauguration; it may be a tariff or a tax bill. However President Harding in his inaugural address rebuked this sentiment. He declared that it was time to reach stability through productive effort.

It is our humble opinion that most any of us can start a business revival of his own, by the combination of a little courage, considerable action, and an infectious spirit of optimism. —Public Service Monthly.

Pink pennies and field daisies were used in the house decorations. Mrs. Eldred A. Babbage presided at the punch bowl in the reception hall. The ices were in pink and white, and as they were being served, Master William Goddard Polk presented each guest with little hand-painted favors of rose buds, which revealed the secret of the Heyser-Colville engagement.

A LITTLE PRAISE

A little praise for what we've done
Delights the heart, uplifts the soul,
Inspires us for the task begun
And helps us to attain the goal
A little praise in time bestowed
Makes all the world seem bright and fair;
It lightens the oppressive load
And makes it easier to bear.

A little praise revives us when
We feel the burden of the day;
It fills us with new life again,
And makes our labor seem like play.
A little praise makes new appeal,
Awakes ambition, keeps it hot;
A little praise renews our zeal—
And most of us can stand a lot!

A MARKETING PLAN TO SOLVE KENTUCKY'S TOBACCO PROBLEM

Double Interest Explained

A MEMBER—I haven't seen anything in your California growers that is exactly like this. Take the warehousing facilities in the State of Kentucky. Some of our growers are not only growers, but own the principal amount of stock in the warehousing facilities now. Have you anything like that?

MR. SAPIRO—Yes, we have an exact parallel. A great many of the elevators and the warehouses that now are handling wheat and that we are acquiring were owned by farmers either in whole or in part and in some instances they were completely owned by farmers.

What we do with the farmers is this: We go to them and arrange for a transfer of the elevator to a subsidiary corporation which we organize. We give them preferred stock. If it is going to cost $50,000 we give them $50,000 of preferred stock in a lump then they distribute that to themselves.

But some of the growers sometimes bring out a point which your warehousemen might bring up—they will say, "Why I used to make profits out of the auction system. If I sell for the value of the physical property I lose the so-called auction profit."

That means the farmer is just paralleling the elevator system where they said, "We are doing two kinds of business—first doing an elevator of storage business, that is what our plants are built for; second doing a sort of semi-speculative business by buying and selling wheat. If we turn over the plant to you we get no more buying and selling profit, all we get is the value of the plant for storage purposes."

That is correct. You must give up the so-called auction profit. You must give up the profits made as dealers. You give up the small profit in order to get greater one. You help to establish a stabilizing system and make more from that as farmers than you do as the speculators. But whenever a farmer feels that he cannot afford to give up the slight profit from auctions and make more from getting better prices as a grower, you cannot do anything with him.

A MEMBER—There is one thing that struck some of us. You have in this State probably 100 warehouses. Those 100 warehouses will probably average 100 farmer stockholders to the house, which means 10,000 stockholders in the whole group. Now those stockholders have been picked men. They were picked for their influence either as large growers or as individual men in each section and reach back into every by-path of that whole section. It has occurred to some of us that if you could in some way get all of those 10,000 towards this plan you would have a big movement towards the success of it.

How to Organize.

MR. SAPIRO—That is, of course, a very splendid hope and a very splendid thought. In those farmers interested in the warehouses you have the key to this whole Burley co-operative movement in Kentucky. You can get those men once you show them that their investment in warehouses is not to be dumped.

Along with this plan you will have to go into each community and get together as many of the so-called leading organization make a written agreement with those men that the warehouses will be taken over at an appraised value by a subsidiary corporation and the marketing association would absolutely guarantee there would be no loss on the investment under the plan. You will have to appoint a special committee on warehouses to call on the so-called prominent stockholders and make a written agreement with them, conditional on getting a general sign-up, that if the plan goes through, their warehouses will be taken in.

You must keep the membership campaign separate from your method of financing.

If you men as a whole approve the general idea, then the next question is, "Can the idea be actually introduced into Kentucky?" You have two points on that.

First, the human factor. Could you actually get men to sign up that type of agreement?

Second, could you take care of the existing situation with warehouses and get the so-called leader group who are concerned with the warehouses to endorse the proposition and help get it through?

Then comes the next problem: "If you believe that can be done what are the steps to be taken to get the groups together so, first, the plan can be presented, and, second, where the plan will be accepted."

That means the actual organization programme; it is different from the plan itself. That is the technique of getting the plan through.

Must Be Local Project.

You are a typical group of the leader crowd in Kentucky, men who have the grower's viewpoint and the warehouseman's and banker's interest as well. Suppose you were willing to sell and combine your interest with the warehouse owners, with yourselves as tobacco growers, and get the system working. I believe you men can produce the same reaction on the men with whom you are acquainted in the districts from which you come. I have no doubt if this plan were worked out right by yourselves—but not by outsiders—and presented by yourselves to the men in your district—I haven't any real tobacco growers, the real warehouse owners to come with you. That situation is absolutely easy.

A MEMBER—While the warehouse owner may not object to this plan is it not possible that the warehouse operator who is getting a salary may object? He is the man we have to get.

MR. SAPIRO—Let me give you a parallel to that. In the Northwest we struck in some of these elevators, the farmers' elevator companies, that had hired managers, men getting small salaries from the farmers owning those places. These men took the slump against the co-operative association which their growers were seeking to tie up with. One thing happened. Those fellows got in there and threw them out—or instructed the Board of Directors to throw the manager out, on the ground that he was opposing the interests of their own stockholders. Some other places we found we could convert the managers.

I don't want to say that I anticipate that your operators will as a whole take that stand. I think you will find some of these men will put themselves and their own interest ahead of those of the growers, but I don't think you will find that in a majority of men are perfectly square shooters. Some of them will think they will work in other places under this plan. If they can't, there is some other place in Kentucky where they can make a living.

A MEMBER—Will there be a selling function for the warehousemen?

MR. SAPIRO—No, there will not be a selling function for the warehouse manager as such. You have right now a great many more selling points than you are justified in having, a great many more. It is an uneconomical system even from the standpoint of the tobacco buyers; they all recognize it. You will minimize your selling points. I don't know how many of you have even talked over this problem. You will have the least number with which you can get along. For the first year you must have your buyers come wherever you can get them. You will work out over a term of years a minimum number of selling points and a minimum amount of buyer's choice, but what particular places you would select I cannot tell you. The number of places you will need I couldn't state.

A MEMBER—One point would be all that is needed.

MR. SAPIRO—That is correct. For example, there used to be eighty different points where they would sell prunes. All the prunes today are sold through one office at San Jose.

A MEMBER—What would be the use of warehouses?

MR. SAPIRO—Yes. You need receiving points; you need grading points; you need storage points. You have an actual use for every one of your warehouses.

A MEMBER—The same amount of tobacco would be received under the new plan as under the old plan. You would have to have receiving points and instead of having the tobacco come there all at once you could make it come right along.

MR. SAPIRO—You hit it right. You must have receiving points.

A MEMBER—These warehouses are ideal for that thing. Instead of waiting until the first or middle of January we could commence delivering tobacco the first day of October.

A MEMBER—How are you going to finance and protect the small farmer?

Financing the Small Farmer.

MR. SAPIRO—Let us take beans as a perfect illustration of that situation. We have, of course, the largest bean growers in the State and the smallest bean growers in the State all in the same association. When we first organized that we found that in districts like Santa Barbara and Santa Maria the very small growers were absolutely tied up to the bankers and couldn't deliver anything. So we signed up contracts that if they had beans covered by crop mortgages they could be excluded if the lien holder insisted on getting possession. We went to the bank and made arrangements whereby we handled those crops covered by crop mortgage and so on for the joint account of the individual grower and the bank, paying the bank in full its lien with interest and simply paying the overplus into the association pool. The banks were glad to make that arrangement with the association. It took from them the unpopular burden of foreclosing on the mortgage and satisfied the bank at an earlier period. The grower liked it because it helped him to start the association. It took a period of two years in some instances to clear out the grower, but we did it. We cleared out the banks. Since that time that has been the standard method for working the crop mortgage plan, not only in beans but on all the so-called nonperishable products.

In Oklahoma this year, when we went in, practically every grower, especially in small quantities, had a crop mortgage on his cotton. We are arranging written agreements with the banks to handle that cotton for the joint account of the bank and the grower and pay the bank's debt charges and costs and put the balance into the pool.

Right on that point let us take a grower delivering red Walla Walla wheat. He has 10,000 bushels. If it is No. 2 red Walla Walla he would get $1.25. He would deliver this wheat to the warehouse and take a warehouse receipt; or if he delivered it to an elevator he would get a wheat ticket. They are both public places, the public elevator and the public warehouse. The wheat ticket tells he has delivered 10,000 bushels of No. 1 red Walla Walla and nothing further. He indorses that wheat ticket (or the warehouse receipt) to the association and delivers it to the association. Then the association has a regular form of draft and acceptance. It fills it out and accepts a draft which he is going to sign for $12,500. The draft is either a three-months', or ninety days, or six-months' draft. Usually these are three-months' drafts where there is a choppy market, so we can reduce credit as we go along. If the market looks thoroughly stabilized we issue more of the six-months' drafts. But remember the association is conservative. This association is not trying to get the largest amount of money by any means, but a fair amount of money by right banking arrangements. We issue the draft and along with it we give to the grower a list of the banks in his district that favor the plan. He must not go outside of his district unless his banker tells him it is all right. He can go to any bank in his district that favors the plan and present this draft and they will discount at the current discount rate—6, 6 1/2 or 7 per cent. Most of the time last year in Whitman county the discount rates were 6 1/2. He discounts it there and he gets $12,500, less the 6 1/2 per cent for three months.

Ready Cash For the Grower.

At the end of the day that bank lets our association know what drafts it has discounted. Then we send over to it the warehouse receipts or grain tickets covering those drafts. Or we may give the warehouse receipt or the ticket to the grower and tell him to take it to his own bank and so save us the trouble.

The grower gets immediate money within twenty-four hours after the delivery of his stuff. The local banks have a paper signed by the grower, known to his banker and indorsed by the association. The association's credit is worth something because it has not only that grower but a whole lot of other growers tied up for four more years. Then it has behind it a nonperishable product of commercial value. The banks have a paper which if it is a member of the Federal Reserve, it can rediscount with the Federal Reserve Bank. If it is not a member of the Federal Reserve it sells it to a correspondent bank which very likely is a member of the system. We moved hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of paper through the Federal Reserve Banks the last year. It has handled literally millions of dollars a year on the paper of growers through the co-operative system.

This paper is rediscounted in the Federal Reserve system as agricultural paper, with six-months' maturity, of for agricultural uses, by written ruling of the Federal Reserve Board.

The preferred method is to use the local banks and the draft and acceptance system; but whenever they reach the limit to use the commodity bond system I have already explained to you.

Extending Crop Value

A MEMBER—How do you arrive at the amount of money you advance, for instance, on your beans?

MR. SAPIRO—That is a very interesting question. We called in a meeting of the banks at Sacramento and Stockton and Santa Maria and met together with the associate governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. Day of San Francisco. At that conference the growers' association, the Federal Reserve and the bankers all canvassed the outlook for selling beans. We had figures on what the sales were being made for. They studied the situation as to the beans locally, whether they were going to be good beans, or bad beans, many cracks or splits, so we could get an idea of the competition between New York, Michigan and Oriental beans. We had all those points present. We finally decided that somewhere between 4 and 4 1/2 cents would be absolutely safe to lend on the small whites for the season. Some men suggested 5 cents, one suggested as low as 3 cents. It will interest you to know that the 3 cents, which was the lowest suggestion, came from the manager of the association. The banks as a group suggested between 4 and 4 1/2. Finally we agreed that 4 cents was the safe amount. Then tearpans are used only by the Italian workmen in this country or exported to Cuba or Italy. All agreed that the loan value of them should be one-half of the loan value on the small whites. Then we had to figure on the colored beans. We were much afraid of the Pinto bean of New Mexico as against our pink bean of California, although they usually sell at the same price as our white or California. We finally reached an agreement for every class of bean.

A MEMBER—How much did you get for those beans when you did sell them?

MR. SAPIRO—We averaged for small whites between 6 and 7; tearpans 3 1/2 to 4 1/2.

A MEMBER—Have you thought of any way to apply that method to the tobacco situation here? I mean this, as to how to arrive at the amount of money?

MR. SAPIRO—Yes; do it exactly the same way. Mr. Sands, president of the American National Bank at Richmond, sat in a conference there. He said when we are ready to act we will call together the leading local bankers and have them get together in one office in Richmond, all the so-called local and city banks, and reach a decision as to the fair amount we will loan on tobacco. That is the way you will do it—in conference with your bankers.

A MEMBER—Do you have the tenant system? A great many people here are interested in knowing what becomes of the tenant.

Tenants Become Owners.

MR. SAPIRO—We started in with the same thing out there. Here is an interesting thing: Where you have a co-operative marketing association for a term of years you can mathematically show a decrease in the tenant system and an increase in the small owner system. But we originally started with a tenant system. Let us first distinguish between the cropping system and the tenant or lease system.

Technically the difference between the cropping and lease system is that with the cropping system the landlord retains the title to the product, and the so-called cropper has nothing of the product except occasionally as whatever to do with the marketing a matter of courtesy the landlord lets him do so. If your arrangements are cropping arrangements, as in some tobacco districts in South Carolina and some cotton districts in the South then the only person to sign up is the landlord. If your arrangement is the standard leasing system you have this problem: If the landlord is passive—that is, doesn't oppose the thing, but is passive—you may sign up the tenant without doing any harm and simply take care of the tenant's share. If the landlord is favorable you sign both the landlord and the tenant. If the landlord is antagonistic, as sometimes happens, then, even though the tenant wants to sign up, don't sign up the tenant because you get him in trouble, with his landlord. That is the rule we always observe. Wherever possible, however, sign up both the landlord and the tenant. If, however, you have a case of a lease on a basis you sign up, of course, only the tenant because the landlord is not technically or legally eligible to be signed up.

A MEMBER—The landlord, of course, has a superior lien to everybody for sixty days after the property leaves possession. At the expiration of the sixty days his lien is not superior to anybody else's lien. How does he maintain that superiority?

MR. SAPIRO—You mean how to keep the landlord's lien for money advanced? That is perfectly easy. Let us put it this way: In what different position is the landlord from the banker who has advanced money to the grower for his crop? The landlord has a landlord's lien, just like the banker's

ROOSTERS WEEK SET FOR MAY 23-28

Rooster Destruction is Goal of Campaign by Poultry Dept. of C. of A.

Lexington, Ky., May 7.—Many roosters on Kentucky farms are expected to be disposed of during the coming weeks as a result of a campaign being conducted by the Poultry Department of the College of Agriculture. A proclamation announcing May 23 to 28 as "Rooster Week" has been made and farmers asked to kill, confine or sell all male birds during that week and those following throughout the summer. Roosters running in the flock cause fertile eggs which spoil rapidly during warm weather. Farmers are suffering heavy annual losses by reason of this special-laws in the department say.

Experiments have shown that fertile eggs are unfit for food after 24 hours in warm weather while infertile eggs may be placed in an incubator at 103 degrees and left for 14 days after which they are still suitable for food.

FINAL STATISTICS POPULATION OF U. S.

Latest Is 105,710,820; Gained 27,512 Since October.

Washington, May 17.—Final statistics placing the total population of continental United States at 105,710,820, or 27,512 more than announced last October, when preliminary figures were given out, were submitted today to Speaker Gillet of the House of Representatives for apportionment purposes by Director William M. Stewart of the Bureau of the Census. Final figures place the total population of the outlying possessions of the United States at 12,148,738, which brings the population of the entire country and its possessions to 117,859,558.

Census figures for 1920 made public today gave Kentucky a population of 2,180,360 whites, an increase for the decade of 7.5 per cent and 235,938 negroes, a decrease of 9.8 per cent. Other races were Indians, 57; Chinese, 62; Japanese 9; all other, 4, and of the total population 1,189,136 females.

For Connecticut the figures were 1,358,732 white, 21,046 negroes, 159 Indians, 566 Chinese, 102 Japanese and 26 other, 695,335 of the total population being males and 685,296 females.

Covington Woman Says Tanlac Has Made a New Woman of Her—Can't Praise It Enough.

"I can recommend Tanlac with all my heart," said Mrs. Susie Medaris, 226 West 14th street, Covington, Ky., "for since taking the medicine I am enjoying just wonderful health and strength."

"For nearly a year I was almost a nervous wreck. I lost my appetite so completely that I had no desire whatever for food. I felt tired and worn out all the time and seemed to be losing all the energy I ever had. Of all troubles I think nervousness must be worse than anything else, for I never had anything before to give me half the worry and so completely rob life of all its pleasures."

"From the testimonials I saw where their nervousness and that gave me lots of people had been relieved of heart to try it. It took hold of my condition right at once and built me right up in almost no time I began to relish my meals and regain my strength."

"Now I am full of energy, perfectly healthy and life is a pleasure to me. In fact Tanlac has truly made me a New woman and I can never praise it enough."

PLAN TO SOLVE TOBACCO PROBLEM

lien. We may recognize that lien just as we arrange with the bankers to pay off the banker's lien, first—pay the grower after that. We may have two or three liens, a superior lien and a junior lien. We have to take that same thing up in the same way the individual grower would, take them up for the account of all of them in their turn.

A MEMBER—The landlord wants to know how to maintain his superior lien. Take the case of the merchant who has advanced to the tenant supplies and otherwise. At the end of sixty days his lien is the same as the landlord's lien. How do you meet this situation?

MR. SAPIRO—The only thing we do there is exactly what was suggested before. We are not going to try to create a system in which we change a senior lien into a junior lien or a primary into a secondary. You can arrange the continuation of any lien system by contract, but can only do that by agreement of the parties concerned as lien holders. There may not be enough money in the advance payment to pay off more than the first lien holders; there may not be money enough to pay even the first lien holder. All must take their chances. They take the very same in net results anyway.

A MEMBER—I am confident, gentlemen, that I express the thought that is in the minds of all of you when I express my own keen satisfaction and pleasure in this extraordinary opportunity we have had in hearing Mr. Sapiro and to express the appreciation and pleasure we have for the courtesy of Judge Bingham. I would make the suggestion—perhaps I had better make it as a motion—that this body of men select, or request Judge Bingham as chairman to select, a committee to carry on this work for the development of this fine idea. I make that motion and I would express to Judge Bingham, and especially to Mr. Sapiro, our great pleasure in the courtesy and everything that he has given us.

The Organization.

A MEMBER—I move instead to elect some one chairman of this meeting first.

A MEMBER—I move to make Judge Bingham the chairman of the meeting.

The motion was duly seconded and put and was unanimously carried.

Judge Bingham took the chair.

JUDGE BINGHAM—I thank you very much, gentlemen. I do not know that there are any more formalities that we want to go through just at this time. I would like to take this opportunity to say how much I appreciate the fact that you gentlemen have come here. I told you at the outset yesterday why you were asked here—because you are the type of men that you are. I would like to have some expression from this meeting just along this line: Do you think well of the plan that Mr. Sapiro has explained to us, and do you think it is practicable and feasible as applied to Kentucky? I would just like to know. Those of you who feel that the principles which have been announced here are sound business principles, which, having had favorable application to other commodities may have favorable application to tobacco. I would like to know how many of you feel that way.

(All present raised their hands.) I would like to know how many of you feel that out of the situation in Kentucky as it stands this offers a way out for us, if it is worth while going on. How many of you feel it is worth while to go on in attempting to put this on a practical basis, put these principles into operation in Kentucky?

(All present signified their assent.) I think that is very satisfactory. I think we have made very substantial progress. I feel that if men of your type believe that this can be done it can be done. In other words, if you are convinced that this is a way out, then I see no reason in the world why we cannot convince other people that it is the way out. Therefore I think we have certainly made substantial progress in this meeting, and I feel the thing to do is to go on actively and energetically as possible—of course assuming that you are going to give your support in your community to the efforts we are going to make together, because this cannot be done by any one man or by you yourselves; it is for all. There are a great many difficulties, a great many prejudices, a great deal of ignorance that we must go out against in Kentucky even down to the psychological elements, Mr. Sapiro referred to yesterday; that certain fierce individualism in Kentucky that is admirable in many ways. We must lay that aside if we wish to put this other over. I am sure it can be done now since men who know the situation and know it practically favor it as you do. I don't know that there is anything further for me to say except that I thank you for coming here.

A MEMBER—I want now to re-nu-mer my motion that this body empower the chairman to select a committee at his leisure to take further steps in the development of this plan. On motion duly seconded the body resolved itself into a committee of organization and the motion was put before the house and unanimously carried.

JUDGE BINGHAM—Of course I am not going to try to appoint any such committee now because that is very important and very vital and I want the counsel and help of all of you gentlemen here. I am glad no number is mentioned. As I understand there is no limit on the number and we can gradually extend as necessity may arise.

GIRL'S GET RICH QUICK PLAN BASED ON FLIES.

Waukegan, Ill., May 13.—If Marian Rostrom, 10 doesn't earn at least a million dollars this summer she is going to be a pretty disappointed little girl.

If she does the city of Waukegan is going bankrupt.

The Waukegan councilmen have announced that each child will receive 10 cents for every hundred flies captured and taken to the official fly counter.

"And they told us," Marian explained, "that each fly produces 5 million other flies each summer. So I am going to capture one hundred flies and put 'em in a cage and see what happens."

DRY AGENTS LET OUT; NO FUNDS

Failure of Congress to Provide $250,000 Necessitates Cut Out of 700 Agents.

Washington, May 18.—About 700 prohibition enforcement agents in various parts of the country have been temporarily laid off for lack of funds to pay their salaries, it was alleged today at prohibition enforcement headquarters here.

Failure of congress to provide $250,000 asked for by the prohibition commissioner to pay salaries of field agents until the end of the present fiscal year, officials said necessitated a cut of about two-thirds in the field forces. The men were given a forty-day vacation without pay but it was said will be reinstated on July 1, when the appropriations for the next fiscal year become available.

About 500 agents remain on duty, officials said, but many of them are office men. While they expect some difficulty in the strict enforcement of the dry laws with such a reduced staff the prohibition enforcement officials indicated that aid would not be asked of the department of justice or other government agencies.

SCHOOL TEACHERS MISERABLY PAID

In a special report on teachers' salaries the United States Commissioner of Education, P. P. Claxton, remarks that in some parts of this country the teacher is paid less than the people of the county pay for the feeding of a prisoner. This was true of tens of thousands of teachers in 1918, and it is true of thousands still.

In some of the States the average yearly pay is miserable: North Carolina, $284 a year; Mississippi, $291; South Carolina, $315; Alabama, $345; Kentucky $364; Georgia, $366; Tennessee, $370; Florida, $383; Virginia $385; Arkansas $387. These ten States pay the least in the Union. Louisiana and Texas are more liberal than some New England States Maryland and Delaware are relatively generous, paying better than the supposedly intellectual Kansas and Wisconsin. The average salary of a teacher in Kansas is only $513.

California is most liberal of all, with $1,012 the average for all teachers. Her high school teachers receive $1,454, an average which is exceeded only in Arizona. New York ranks second to California, paying an average of $976 to all teachers. But our rural teachers, with $554 as compared with $1,034 for city schoolma-am, are badly recompensed. The country school teachers of Maryland, Oklahoma and Missouri are paid more liberally than that, not to mention princely States like Massachusetts ($1,442) and New Jersey ($1,003).

All in all it is a wretched showing. Some States, of course, are poor and the rural communities cannot spare large amounts for education. But it is a shock to find country teachers paid $337 in Wisconsin, $471 in Kansas, $439 in Iowa, $488 in Indiana and scarcely more than that in Illinois and New York. What do parents in rich farming States expect to buy for their children's brains with such pit-tances?—N. Y. Herald.

"ZYXT" LATEST WORD IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Boston, May 15.—Zyxt is the last word in the English language says the Boston Transcript, according to the Oxford dictionary, which has now said its last word; that is to say, the forty years toil of Sir James Murray and his coadjutors has come to its end with the last word that can be found to go into it. The Oxford has gone all the other recent dictionaries, which end with the word "Zyxtomma," one better by discovering "zyxt." And what does it mean? It seems that the word is fourteenth-century Kentish dialect for "seest"—"thou zyxt." It was, indeed, only in recent times that the dictionaries had discovered "zyxtomma," which is some kind of fly known to the zoologists.

N. Y. DENTISTS ARGUE ABOUT PYORRHEA.

New York State dentists differ as to whether pyorrhea is incurable, and at the convention of the Dental Society of the State of New York held the middle of last week, the subject of pyorrhea created an enlivened discussion. Dr. Eugene Talbot, of Chicago, who has been making researches, reported he had found pyorrhea similar to scurvy, and instead of treating patients who had it, he recommended them to have a change of climate and consult a physician.

Upon the other hand, Dr. P. S. Stillman, of New York City, stated Dr. Talbot was behind the times. Dr. Stillman said that 95 per cent of pyorrhea cases were curable. He was backed up in his statement by another New York dentist.

I'd walk a mile for a Camel

The pleasure is worth it. There's no substitute for Camel quality and that mild, fragrant Camel blend.

The fellow who smokes Camels, wants Camels. That's because Camels have a smoothness, a fragrance and a mildness you can't get in another cigarette.

Don't let anyone tell you that any other cigarette at any price is so good as Camels.

Let your own taste be the judge. Try Camels for yourself. A few smooth, refreshing puffs and you'd walk a mile for a Camel, too.

FISCAL COURT AUTHORIZED TO APPOINT DELEGATES

To Good Roads Convention in Louisville, June 7-10. Candidates to Help Swell Crowd.

Louisville, May 14.—The fact that it is candidate year has given impetus to the good road Convention which will be held at the Jefferson County Armory, Louisville, June 7-10 under auspices of the Kentucky Road Engineers' Association. Candidates are expected to swell the attendance and arrangements are being made for accommodation of 3,000 delegates and visitors.

The meeting will be absolutely non-partisan in its nature. Candidates of all political faiths realize they cannot wage an intelligent campaign before the people without being well versed on the subject of roads. The convention will afford them golden opportunity to inform themselves. Every phase of road construction and maintenance will be discussed by experts who will avoid technical terms, using language understood by the layman. Motion pictures will be used to illustrate road building and upkeep. Delegates will be taken on automobile tours of inspection of various types of roads. Modern equipment will be demonstrated.

The movement has the hearty support of the State Highway Commission. Jos. S. Boggs, State Highway Engineer, who was in conference this week with the committee in charge of arrangements, is urging that every county have good representation.

Fiscal Courts are authorized to appoint delegates. Mr. Boggs has pointed out in letters to them. County Engineers, County Judges, Fiscal Courts and citizens interested in road projects will be welcome. All sessions and entertainments will be open to the public.

"JIM DIRECTLY"

The great thoroughbred harness stallion will not be brought to Cloverport for service this year owing to lateness of season. But Kentucky patrons can get service any day by bringing their mares to Tobinsport and the ferrage will be deducted from fee which this year to introduce this fine horse will be $12.50 next season $20.00.

This horse is very large, over 17 hands, nice built and weighs in full flesh over 1,700. He has the disposition, speed, endurance, appearance and all the qualities to produce the finest general purpose horses ever seen in this section. The capsule system of breeding is used to insure service to all comers, any day and this is known to be the safest and surest for results. Come any day. See James S. England or James W. Hawkins at Tobinsport.

WASHER, WRINGER, AND IRONER ALL IN ONE MACHINE

Home-laundry work in its entirety includes not only washing and wringing the clothes, but ironing them too, and that is regarded as no light task by many housekeepers. Therefore a new type of washing machine, is made unusually interesting by the fact that it performs all three operations, using electric power. The ironer is less than 2 ft. long, and its roller may be heated either electrically or by gas. It is pivoted at a corner of the washing machine, alongside the wringer.

Big Type Poland Chinas

Mr. John D. Babbage, Cloverport, Ky. Dear Sir: I am enclosing $1.00 for The Breckenridge News for six months. Please begin with this week's issue. Address, Walter O. Stith, Union Star, Ky.

Must Have News From Home.

Mr. J. D. Babbage, Cloverport, Ky. Dear Mr. Babbage: Please change my address from 484 Vine street to 76 Ido Avenue, Firestone Park. I came back up here and I feel I must have the news from home. Work here is not very plentiful yet. These rubber factories are only employing their old experienced employees and a limited number of them. There have been over a thousand applying at Firestone's every day since my return, for employment. But few of them get any thing to do.

Thanking you for past courtesies, and with best wishes, I remain, Sincerely, W. E. McGary, Akron, Ohio.

Wading Through Mud In Illinois.

Dear Mr. Babbage: Enclosed you will find $1.00 for six months subscription to The Breckenridge News. I have been in Illinois since March 1921. I have been wading mud up to my hip pockets but that beats raising tobacco in Kentucky.

Do you hear of anybody that hollers "Hurrah" for Harding when he gets almost a blank check for a big fine crop of tobacco? I'll bet not. I'll bet too that old Woodrow is sitting back laughing to himself at the way the Republicans are playing h— with everything. I guess everybody has heard the League of Nations discussed and outlined from one end to the other. My opinion is that doing away with the League meant no more high prices for tobacco in Kentucky.

Last Sunday, I saw the Mattoon base ball club beat the Coles county champions 8 to 0. I would be glad if Henry Critchlow would bring his Axtel guys out here and show Mattoon how to play ball. Success to the News. J. Othar Chancellor, Charleston, Ill., Route 4.

Mrs. Ryan Subscribes.

Mr. J. D. Babbage, Dear Sir: Enclosed you will find 50c for which send me The Breckenridge News for three months. Mrs. Annie Ryan, Russellville, Ky.
